As part of its continuing effort to define and document the Southeast's construction industry, Southeast Construction publishes its fourth annual Top Design ranking.

This year's ranking of the region's top design firms includes more than 130 architectural and engineering firms from the magazine's territory of Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The ranking has grown significantly from the 85 firms included in last year's ranking to the 130 designers ranked here (actually 131 due to a tie at the bottom position).

The collective value of billings has grown significantly as well. Last year, the collective billings for our Top Design ranking totaled approximately $1.7 billion for 2003. This year, the collective regional billings total – for 2004 – climbed by roughly $600 million to nearly $2.3 billion.

The Top Design ranking is based upon returned surveys indicating each firm's 2004 billings figures for projects >> performed in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina. Only firms that returned a survey are included in the ranking.

Repeating in the No. 1 spot this year is PBS&J. The Miami-based engineering giant reported approximately $214 million in billings from the four-state area, and total worldwide billings of $441 million. Kimley-Horn and Associates of Raleigh, N.C., came in second with its $141.8 million in regional revenue, followed by Mactec of Alpharetta, Ga., with its $131.9 million in billings from the four-state area.

Parsons Brinckerhoff reported $119 million in regional billings to place fourth, while Reynolds Smith & Hills of Jacksonville, Fla., placed fifth with its $86.9 million total.

The rest of the top 10 included: 6) HNTB of Lake Mary, Fla., $66.3 million; 7) Jordan, Jones & Goulding, Norcross, Ga., $65.9 million; 8) WilsonMiller of Naples, Fla., $53.7 million; 9) The LPA Group of Columbia, S.C., $46.6 million; and 10) Universal Engineering Sciences of Orlando, $40.6 million.

By state, the cumulative design billings were as follows: Florida – nearly $1.4 billion; Georgia – $468.1 million; North Carolina – almost $297.5 million; and South Carolina – roughly $148.7 million.

Southeast Construction also asked firms to report their total, worldwide billings. On this measure, HNTB Corp. reported the largest revenue figure, with approximately $518.5 million in worldwide billings.

To be included in future surveys, please send an e-mail to Scott Judy, editor, at scott_judy@mcgraw-hill.com. <<
